Amos Burgman, 2717 Fair street, Davenport, Iowa, says: "I had a severe case of kidney disease which affected my entire system, intense backaches and weakness across my loins so severe at times as to cause me to stop work. I was unable to stoop or lift anything without enduring sharp shooting pains through my back and sick headaches and pains in my eyes were daily occurrences. My health was completely broken down, I consulted doctors, and tried many remedies but got no relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and decided to try them. After the first few doses I felt relief. I continued their use until I had consumed three boxes and by that time the pains and other symptoms had disappeared. I am at present enjoying the best of health and can conscientiously say that I owe it to Doan's Kidney Pills."

He Can't Escape Responsibility

The first week of a suit's wear is not the test of its shape and its attractiveness, but the last day. And merchant tailoring is above all else enduring. It is so thoroughly executed--it is so permanent in its lines--it is so proportioned to every contour of the body that the action of the shoulder-blades and the average exertions of life do not disturb the original outlines of the garment. The merchant tailor, realizing that he cannot escape the responsibility of his product, and that his customer's opinion of him will be regulated by his last impression of his purchase, is therefore over-painstaking, not only to cut his clothes properly, but also to put into them the very finest workmanship that he can employ. He realizes he must give value in self-defense, his own self-defense being the strongest defense of his customer.

Faults on Both Sides.

He was a mild and meek kind of husband, but at length his patience and good nature gave out, and he went to his lawyer to get him to draw up a deed of separation from his exasperating better half.

"Ah, well," said the lawyer thoughtfully, "perhaps there may be faults on both sides."

"You're right!" shouted the angry client. "She has a hump on her back and a wart on her nose."—New York Times.

Her Kick.

"I don't mind finding a gray hair or two in my own hair," sighed the bachelor girl, who shows some few signs of the sear and yellow leaf, "but when I pay $3 for a nice bunch of lovely brown curls and have to pick them out of those, too, it isn't fair. Do you think it is?"—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Say," queried the would be humorist, "where is that place Atoms that so many people are blown to?"

"It's just the other side of Effigy, the place in which so many people are hanged," answered the solemn person. —Chicago News.

The Right of the Kiss.

Some say kissing is a sin, but if it was a lawful, lawyers would not allow it; if it was a holy, ministers would not do it; if it was a modest, maidens would not take it; if it was a plenty, paupers would not get it. —Robert Burns.
